

Faculty of Medicine

Based on Osaka University Admission Policies, the Faculty of Medicine seeks the type of students noted below in order to nurture personnel who can contribute to the development of medicine and medical treatment in the world.

- Individuals who can ascertain the true essence of matters and make appropriate decisions quickly
- Individuals who can make unique proposals, products of a fertile imagination and unfettered thinking
- Individuals who have a well-rounded character, able to engage in social activities in an ethical manner
- Individuals who have a strong will to stick to their beliefs, but also flexibility to listen to other people's ideas

In order to select such students properly in a comprehensive way, this school selects students based on their scores achieved in the examinations made by the National Center for University Entrance Examinations, those of mathematics, science, and foreign language in the February Individual Achievement Examinations, as well as through the result of an interview.

In the March Individual Achievement Examinations, this school selects students based on their scores achieved in the examinations made by the National Center for University Entrance Examinations and those of a short essay and the interview.

Furthermore, the school also conducts multiple methods in screening including Screening for Privately-funded International Students.
