

The Graduate School of Pharmaceutical Sciences

Based on Osaka University Admission Policies, the Graduate School of Pharmaceutical Sciences welcomes individuals who have the power to think logically and flexibly, rich creativity nurtured through research in order to be able to nurture excellent personnel who can take the initiative in developing life sciences, drug discovery science, social and environmental pharmaceutical health chemistry, medical pharmacy, and contribute to drug development.

In order to select students worthy of fostering the training of human resources who will lead the development of the above-mentioned pharmaceutical education, the master's course at the Medical Pharmacy conducts general entrance examinations open to students from any undergraduate school and special entrance examinations for graduates from universities other than the School of Pharmaceutical Sciences, Osaka University.

Furthermore, the doctor's courses in Medical Pharmacy and Advanced Pharmaco-Science conducts two entrance examinations respectively in order to accept excellent students from various research backgrounds including working people and international students.

Additionally, for those who wish to enroll in courses at a university having a partnership agreement with the Graduate School of Pharmaceutical Sciences, the school also conducts entrance examinations in Tokyo.