

Graduate School of Science

In order to accept persons matching its education objectives, the Graduate School of Science conducts entrance examinations consisting of a written examination and an oral examination for applicants as well as for working people and international students.

- Individuals who have completed the curriculum at a science university and those certified as having academic ability equivalent to that of a science university graduate
- Individuals who have intellectual interest in natural science and feel pleasure in searching for the truth
- For the master's course, individuals possessing basic academic ability and communication skills equivalent to that of a graduate who completed curriculum at science university
- For the doctor's course, individuals who have the ability to conduct research equivalent to that of a person with a master's degree and aim to obtain a doctor's degree and be active in society