

The Association for Literary and Linguistic Computing and the Graduate School of Language and Culture, the University of Osaka, jointly host

2010 Osaka Workshop on Digital Humanities

20-22 March 2010, Graduate School of Language & Culture, University of Osaka

Target Audience and the Aim of the Workshop

Computers are coming to play a steadily more prominent role in the various fields of modern scholarship, including literature, linguistics, cultural studies, history, and religious studies. The goal of this workshop is to raise awareness of how we can apply digital technologies in humanities studies. Lectures by invited speakers will provide a general introduction to the state of the art in digital humanities as well as excellent examples of computer-assisted text analysis/text mining and creation and management of humanities digital resources. Hands-on workshop exercises will provide an opportunity for participants to acquire practical skills by trying out some of the resources and techniques demonstrated in the lectures. Discussion sessions will be held to complement the lectures and workshops, through which participants will have a chance to receive expert advice on how to initiate and develop their own projects.

Invited speakers include:

- Harold Short, John Lavagnino, Gerhard Brey
(King's College London)
- Lisa Lena Opas-Hänninen (University of Oulu, Finland)
- Espen Ore (University of Oslo, Norway)
- Kiyonori Nagasaki (Institute of Digital Humanities)
- Tomoji Tabata, Maki Miyake, and Yu'ichiro Kobayashi
(University of Osaka)

Tuition fee: ¥4,000 (including coffee/snack and teaching materials). A reduced rate of ¥3,000 applies to students.
