Message from Chairman of Harassment Counseling Office Council

A training session on harassment prevention was recently held on campus. Included in the session was the following effects of academic harassment.

- Damage to the victim's life and future
- Destruction of the foundations of education
- Inability to stop the injustice
- Departure of good personnel from the organization
- Inhibit the free development of academic research

None of the above is good for a university as an educational and research institution that should produce human resources to lead the future and create society through new research results. Not only is this a loss for those involved, but it also has a negative impact on those around them, and can also impair Osaka University's ability to function effectively. I would like to remind everyone of the importance of eliminating harassment (not only not engaging in harassment, but also not overlooking it) as an essential part of ensuring that each and every one of our members and Osaka University as a collective entity can fully demonstrate their abilities and contribute to society.

We at Osaka University do not overlook or allow harassment and will take steps to deal with harassment strictly.

We ask for everyone's cooperation.

Yoshiki Mikami,

Chairman of Harassment Counseling Office Council
